By the present circular, I am activating and clarifying the status and activities of the International Institute for Inter-Religious Diplomacy, which is defined as a EUCLID institute in the Statutes.

The aims of the 3IRD are:

- to promote a respectful, scholarly and consensus building dialogue among the world's great religions, in particular between Islam and Christianity;
- to publish papers, articles, book reviews, dialogues and books of interest in this field;
- to act as an open forum for constructive dialogue among scholars, theologians and diplomats;
- to organize an annual conference promoting scholarly and diplomatic dialogue.

The Institute shall be directed by a Board of Fellows, under the oversight of the EUCLID Administration. A Managing Director may be appointed when the need arises.
